

NACAC is collecting information on college access programs, charter school networks, local education foundations, and community based organizations that are helping to underserved students to become college-ready.

This information will be included in a college access and readiness programs directory for use by admission representatives, parents and students.

This directory will be available on our Web site, www.nacacnet.org, and will be free to the public as well as the organizations who agree to be listed.

Please review the following guidelines to determine whether your organization should be included in this directory:

- Provide potential students with college access services beyond the listing and/or awarding of scholarships, grants or loans;
- Provide students with advice about postsecondary options, financial aid, careers, etc.;
- Provide services on an ongoing basis (more than one or two days per year);
- Offer services beyond those that are Web-based;
- Offer information about more than one institution of postsecondary education;
- Provide basic services at no charge (nominal fees may be charged for such things as field trips, books and event tickets);
- Be classified by the Internal Revenue Service as exempt from taxes (non-profit organization or a public entity)

If you meet these criteria, please take a few minutes to complete this form. For more information, contact info@nacacnet.org.
